SPEECH CONTEST

Good afternoon everyone!

My name is Jian Chun and I'm currently majoring in Air Travel and Tourism at Suwon Science College. I chose this field because I want to fulfill my lifelong aspiration of becoming a professional cabin crew member. Today, I would like to introduce myself in a special way—through the pop songs and singers that inspire me most.

First, one of my favorite singers is Taylor Swift. She has a song called "Wildest Dreams." In this song, the phrase wildest dreams means the most amazing or even unbelievable dreams you can imagine. For me, working as a flight attendant has always been one of those dreams. Since high school, I enjoyed talking with foreigners and learning about different cultures. Later, when I started working at a café called Tim Hortons, I discovered my passion and dedication as a service provider.

From that experience, I realized how much I enjoy making people feel comfortable and welcomed. In the future, I want to combine my love for people and my passion for service to create memorable experiences for every passenger.

Second, another favorite singer of mine is Billie Eilish. Just like Billie's soft and warm voice, I also have a kind and warm personality. This quality helps me connect easily with people around me. I believe my kindness and empathy will help me understand passengers' needs quickly and provide them with a safe and pleasant journey.

Lastly, I admire Avicii, especially his song "The Nights." My favorite lyric is: "He said one day we'll leave this world behind, so live a life you will remember." This line motivates me every day. I want to live a meaningful life, and for me, that means becoming a cabin crew member, meeting people from different countries, listening to their stories, and exploring beautiful places around the world.

To conclude, I would like to share my simple message: enjoy every moment, live your best life, and always care for the people beside you. I hope the spirit of Avicii inspires all of us here today, just as it has inspired me.

Thank you for listening.

Hello, I'm Youngchae Yoon, and I am truly honored to be a part of the 2025 English Speech Contest.

This meaningful event is a tradition of our department, and I am grateful for this valuable opportunity.

I promise to do my best and share my passion with you today.

Hello, my name is Youngchae Yoon, and I am currently majoring in Air Travel and Tourism at Suwon Science College. Today, I'd like to share the story of why I was inspired to become a flight attendant, and what qualities I have that make me well-suited for this career.

My motto is 'What matters is the courage to keep going.' I believe that if you only make plans but never take action, nothing will ever change. To reach your goals, you need the courage to try even if you're scared. Even if you fail, it can be a great chance to learn and grow. That's why I always try to take on new challenges.

First, I had many part-time jobs, and through them, I met many people and helped them. I realized that helping others makes me really happy. These experiences helped me learn more about myself. I want to make people smile with kind and friendly service, so I decided to become a flight attendant.

Second, my strength is being detail-oriented. While working at a hospital information desk, I had to explain treatments and costs clearly, so I learned to double-check everything. Since cabin crew also need to check details carefully, I believe this is a strong advantage for me.

Finally, one of my strengths is strong physical fitness. I believe that maintaining good physical strength is essential to provide excellent service and ensure passenger safety. To build my fitness, I often ride a bicycle instead of driving for short distances. I plan to continue exercising regularly to stay well-prepared for cabin crew role.

In this way, I have various service experiences and careful mindset, I believe I am well-prepared for the important role of a cabin crew member who ensures both safety and comfort for all passengers.

Thank you for listening.

Hello, everyone! My name is Soomin Seo and I currently major in Air Travel and Tourism at Suwon Science. Today, I'd like to tell you what kind of person I am, and why I dream of becoming a flight attendant.

Since I was young, I have really enjoyed traveling and experiencing different cultures around the world. At first, I simply wanted to become a flight attendant to explore many countries. But now, I have realized that this job also gives me the chance to care for others and make their journeys more comfortable and meaningful. Not only do I have a passion for becoming a flight attendant, but I also believe my personal strengths make me well-suited for this role.

First of all, I am patient and able to make decisions based on rational judgment. For example, during my high school dance practice, one teammate was not cooperating. I felt a little upset, but I stayed patient and encouraged her. Thanks to that, we were able to complete the performance successfully. I also try to think carefully before taking action and make logical decisions according to the situation. If an emergency occurs during a flight, I believe these strengths will help me handle it well.

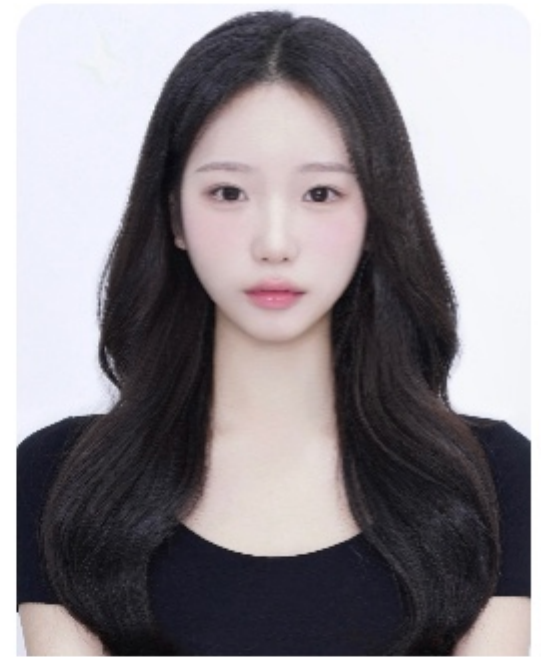

In addition, I have experience tutoring high school students in English. By preparing lessons and creating handouts on my own, I developed a strong sense of responsibility and further improved my English skills. It was a meaningful experience because it taught me how to communicate effectively and build positive relationships with others. Moreover, guiding students and seeing their progress gave me a sense of fulfillment, which strengthened my desire to pursue a career that involves helping and supporting people.

Lastly, I would like to share my motto in life: "Stay humble." I believe that if I become arrogant after achieving something, I will not be able to move on to the next level. With my experiences and personality, I will work harder than anyone else to achieve my dream. I hope to see you again as a flight attendant.

Thank you so much for your valuable time.

"Hello everyone,
I'm Jung Yujin from Class
1-C.

It is truly an honor to stand here today. What I'm about to share may be simple, but it comes from the heart. Thank you very much for giving me this moment."

Hello everyone, My name is Yujin Jung, and I'm currently studying Air Travel and Tourism at Suwon Science College. Since I was young, I've always wanted to be a flight attendant — someone who brings comfort and care to people from all around the world.

One experience that greatly influenced me was when I studied at an international school in Canada for three months. During that time, I met friends from Japan, China, and many other countries. I wanted to communicate with them more deeply, so I made the effort to learn their names, understand their interests, and even use a translator to connect with them. Because of this effort, we quickly became close. On the day before I returned to Korea, my friends surprised me with a handwritten letter in Korean. I was very touched by their thoughtfulness, and it showed me how meaningful it can be to build genuine connections across different cultures.

Another meaningful experience was working at an ice cream shop for eight months. One day, a foreign customer visited the store. I tried my best to communicate with her using simple English. I recommended a flavor that I thought she would enjoy, and she left the store with a big smile on her face. That small interaction made me feel proud and confident that I could make people feel comfortable and happy, even in unfamiliar situations. It also reminded me that good service is not only about providing products, but also about creating positive experiences.

My personal motto is: "A small stream becomes the ocean." I truly believe that even the smallest efforts can grow into something great. To prepare for my dream, I study English, Japanese and Chinese everyday, which helps me better understand different cultures and communicate with people from diverse backgrounds. Step by step, I am building the skills and attitude I need to become a professional flight attendant who can serve passengers with patience, care, and sincerity. I look forward to contributing my passion and positive energy to the airline company.

Thank you for listening.

Good afternoon, I truly appreciate you taking the time to join me today. My name is Jiseung Yoo, a student of the Air travel and Tourism department of Suwon Science College.

“Today is a gift. That’s why we call it the present.” This motto reminds me to treat each day as something precious—a chance to be present, to do my best, and to make every moment count. My dream is to become a wise and compassionate flight attendant. Let me share with you the qualities that I believe will help me get there.

First, I love to communicate with people. I have enjoyed learning English since I was young, and I love to communicate with native speakers. I continue to improve my English by watching videos and reading novels in English, which helps me learn more natural expressions. Thanks to this, during my part-time at a restaurant, I was often the first employee to communicate with foreign customers. I’m also interested in Japanese, so I study it every week starting from the basics. Just as I do with English, I want to commit myself to learning Japanese thoroughly and eventually be able to communicate with native speakers.

Second, I possess both physical and mental strength. No matter how challenging the situation, I remain composed, carry out my responsibilities diligently, and stay optimistic.

I also maintain a disciplined lifestyle through regular ballet practice and running. I believe these qualities are crucial for a cabin crew member entrusted with the safety of passengers.

Lastly, I’ve developed many valuable qualities through my school experiences. I attended classes daily, actively engaged in lessons, and completed various assignments. These activities taught me the importance of diligence and responsibility. In particular, during a course titled Customer Service Practice, I reflected deeply on the true meaning of service, the mindset required of a service professional, and the qualities I should cultivate moving forward. As I journey toward my dreams, I remain committed to steady progress and a learner’s mindset. Thank you deeply for your attention.

Hello, my name is Hyerin Han and I am honored to stand here today. I promise to put my heart into every word and give my best effort.

Hello everyone,
My name is Hyerin Han, a student of the Air Travel and Tourism department at Suwon Science College. I appreciate this opportunity to introduce myself today.

First, I believe an important quality for a flight attendant is being attentive to even minor actions. I enjoy observing people around me and helping them when they are in need. Flight attendants also need this skill to notice nonverbal cues from passengers and provide the best services. I am confident that my sensitivity will help ensure passengers feel comfortable and well cared for during their flight.

Second, I developed my communication skills and gained confidence in serving customers during my part-time job at a dessert café. Since it was located inside a department store, I had to serve customers one by one. Even though it was busy, I was able to interact with many different types of people. As the only staff member who could speak English fluently, I helped foreign customers in English, and they were satisfied with my service. Thanks to this experience, I am now used to assisting international customers with ease.

Finally, I truly enjoy helping others, whether it is offering support in daily life or providing service in a professional setting. I feel proud when I receive compliments for noticing small details or offering help without being asked. These experiences have taught me that genuine care can leave a lasting impression. For these reasons, I believe I am a good fit for this role and look forward to working as a flight attendant in the future. I am confident that my caring attitude and attention to detail will allow me to create a comfortable and positive experience for passengers.

In the long run, I aspire to become a flight attendant and grow as a professional. I aim to provide excellent service and be a role model whom passengers can trust. I will never give up on my goal until I achieve it.

Thank you for listening to my speech.

Hello everyone! My name is Yeeun Bae, and I am majoring in Air Travel and Tourism at Suwon Science College. I have a strong passion for communication and service, which inspired me to pursue a career as a flight attendant. Let me share some of the experiences that shaped me.

First of all, I have experience working part-time at a bakery. Through this job, I realized that while selling bread might seem like a small task to some, the way I speak and interact with customers can actually change their day. This taught me that every detail of service matters, no matter how small. So, I want to be a service worker who, even in small ways, can bring a smile to people's faces. As a flight attendant, I hope to create these positive moments for passengers and make their journeys more enjoyable.

Next, to build up my stamina, I enjoy daily exercise, especially yoga and running. I've learned that flight attendants often walk over 15,000 steps during quick-turn flights, so I've also added strength training to improve my endurance and stay energetic even on flights without layovers.

Regular exercise not only strengthens my body but also helps me manage stress and maintain a positive mindset. I believe this healthy routine will allow me to stay focused, calm, and professional while caring for passengers in any situation.

Lastly, at school, I have been developing the qualities needed to become a service professional, such as foreign language ability, problem-solving skills, and global manners. I feel highly motivated when providing direct service to passengers and receiving their feedback, as it helps me grow and improve. I have always found happiness in making people around me smile, and I believe the role of a flight attendant—ensuring a safe and pleasant journey for passengers—suits me very well. I look forward to the day when I can serve people in the sky with confidence and dedication. Most importantly, I hope to contribute to creating unforgettable travel experiences that leave passengers feeling truly cared for.

Thank you for your listening!

With a suitcase of passion and a passport of kindness, I'm ready for any new journey.

Hello everyone, my name is Hye-min Choi from Class D, majoring in Air Travel and Tourism at Suwon Science College.

When I was 15, I had to live back and forth between Korea and Canada on my own. Living in a country where my native language was not spoken, I had to mature faster than other children. I often felt like an outsider, but those experiences shaped me into the person I am today.

In high school, I became the vice-captain of my hockey team. Leading teammates from different nationalities was not always easy, but I learned how to encourage others, resolve conflicts, and unify the team toward a common goal. This experience made me realize that I enjoy being with people and helping them feel supported, which is my favorite thing to do. At the same time, I recognized my strengths in organizing, communicating, and staying calm under pressure. I believe that being a flight attendant allows me to combine both my passion and my abilities.

Outside school, I worked part-time at a bubble tea shop in Toronto, where I learned patience and the importance of customer service. I also joined a volunteer club and spent time at an animal shelter, taking care of abandoned dogs. These experiences gave me confidence that I can handle customer service challenges with professionalism and warmth.

One message that has stayed with me is from Rosé of BLACKPINK. At the MTV VMAs, she said:
"Thank myself for not giving up even in the toughest times. You've got you."

Her words reminded me of my journey abroad and the challenges I faced without giving up. It taught me to trust my resilience and continue moving forward, no matter the obstacles.

Now, I see myself not as an outsider, but as someone who can serve as a bridge between cultures and people. I believe I can bring comfort and connection to passengers as a flight attendant.

Finally, I sincerely thank my professors at Suwon Science College for guiding me with knowledge and encouragement. Your support gives me the courage to face new challenges. I hope that when I become a flight attendant, you will remember me, as I will never forget your guidance.
Thank you for your time.

Hello! I'm Hye-min Choi from Suwon Science College, majoring in Air Travel & Tourism. I aspire to become a flight attendant who connects people and cultures, and I am grateful for every step of my journey.

“Have you ever gazed up at the sky and envisioned yourself soaring beyond the clouds?”

Hello everyone, My name is Subin Lee, and I’m currently studying in Air Travel and Tourism at Suwon Science College. Ever since I was young, I have aspired to become a flight attendant not just to travel the world, but to connect with people from all walks of life, thousands of feet above the ground. Today, I’d like to talk about the reasons why I’m suitable for the job.

First, I dedicate myself to volunteer work more than twice a month. Through these experiences, as well as active participation in various club activities, I was able to develop a sense of cooperation. In particular, through the distribution of roles, volunteer activities have enabled me to cultivate a strong sense of cooperation, which I believe will greatly benefit me in the service field.

Secondly, I want to tell you about my strength. I am naturally outgoing, optimistic, and approachable. My smile is something I readily share, and I believe it has the power to create a warm atmosphere for those around me. I approach challenges with perseverance, never giving up easily. Moreover, I possess strong physical endurance. When I was young, I learned how to swim after an unexpected accident. This not only helped me become stronger but also sparked my interest in many sports. Engaging in various athletic activities has allowed me to develop both stamina and discipline qualities that are crucial in the demanding service field.

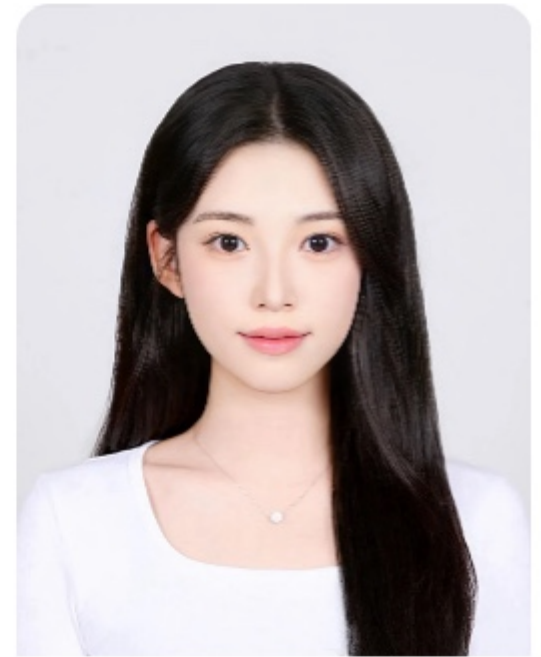

Third, I have hands-on experience working in a restaurant, where I was responsible for tasks such as taking orders and processing payments. Although the work was physically demanding and often without breaks, the sense of fulfillment I felt when customers left satisfied confirmed my aptitude and passion for service excellence.

And finally, I’d like to share my personal motto: “Be as flexible as water, and as steadfast as a mountain.” To me, this phrase embodies the wisdom of life, urging us to remain flexible in the face of change, yet unwavering in our core values. This belief continues to empower me, providing both strength and clarity in pursuing my goals.

Thank you for giving me the opportunity to share my story.

Speak to be remebered,
not just heard

Good afternoon, ladies and gentlemen. My name is Jaeyoon Son, and I am a proud student of the Air Travel and Tourism Department of Suwon Science College. It is an honor to stand here today and share my story with you.

I have a dream—to become a flight attendant. And I believe this dream is built on three pillars of my character.

First, my personality. I am an outgoing person who finds joy in helping others. I still remember one day at school when a Chinese classmate was in trouble—she had forgotten her uniform on graduation photo day. Without hesitation, I lent her mine. The gratitude in her eyes, and the small gift she gave me later, showed me that kindness has power. Moments like this prove that I am someone who always reaches out a helping hand.

Second, my skills. A flight attendant must have strong language ability, and I have worked hard to develop mine. Since elementary school, I have volunteered for seven years, translating Korean fairy tales into English for Cambodian children. This experience not only improved my English, but also taught me responsibility, commitment, and the joy of sharing culture.

Lastly, my values. My life motto is: “Do your best today, because tomorrow is not promised.” Guided by this belief, I have studied with passion, joined clubs, and taken part in many activities. Each step has introduced me to new people, fresh ideas, and valuable lessons. Living each day fully has made me who I am today.

In five years, I see myself wearing the proud uniform of a flight attendant, serving with sincerity, and connecting with passengers from around the world. That is the journey I am determined to take.

Thank you very much for listening.

Hello, everyone.

I'm Mirang Yoo, a student of the Air Travel and Tourism department of Suwon Science College. Today, I'd like to talk about why I dreamed of becoming a flight attendant, and why I am fit for this job.

First, I have aspired to become a flight attendant because I enjoy interacting with people from different cultures, and I believe this career is the best way to do so. I want to help passengers feel comfortable and communicate smoothly with other crew members. To improve my customer service skills, I worked part-time at a bakery, where I served as a cashier and assisted with packaging.

I was always punctual and dedicated, and my team praised me for being sincere. Through this experience, I realized that small efforts can make a big difference in both service and teamwork. I also learned that the best service comes from warm and thoughtful care, and that every customer is unique and first impressions truly matter.

Second, I believe being reliable is a very important quality for flight attendants. Whether at school or work, I always check my schedule carefully and make sure to arrive early. This habit helps my teammates feel they can rely on me. I also finish tasks ahead of time, which shows my sense of responsibility and builds trust with others.

Third, I know that maintaining good physical condition is important for this job. To stay strong, I exercise at home three times a week and use a stepper regularly. This routine helps me build stamina, which I believe is essential for long flights and busy schedules. In addition, I recently joined volunteer activities, where I had the opportunity to care for others and develop a sense of responsibility. These experiences not only strengthened my compassion but also taught me the value of serving with patience and sincerity. (I believe both my physical fitness and my volunteer experiences will help me provide excellent service as a flight attendant.)

I know there are still more steps I need to take to achieve my dream. But I am ready to face challenges with sincerity and effort. I will continue to work hard, step by step, toward my goal.

Thank you for listening.

1-D 김가희

Hello! I'm Gahee, excited to share my thoughts with all of you. I hope my speech inspires and entertains you!

Hello, everyone. My name is Gahee Kim, and I am currently majoring in Air Travel and Tourism at Suwon Science College.

The main reasons I want to become a flight attendant are that I enjoy making people feel comfortable and that I have many opportunities to meet people from different countries. I want to understand the needs of passengers and provide sincere, high-quality service. To prepare for this, I am working hard every day to improve myself.

This August, during summer break, I joined a two-week overseas volunteer program in Kenya and the Philippines with my church friends. We helped local communities through medical support and activities like performances and art projects for children and families. During that time, I observed people who, despite living in difficult conditions, were always grateful and treated others warmly. From them, I learned how to understand people from different cultures and how to treat everyone with respect.

I also enjoy learning and growing. To become a communicative and capable flight attendant, I majored Spanish in high school and now speak Korean, English, and Spanish. But I continue to improve by studying languages and aviation-related subjects for about four hours every day. My curiosity and enthusiasm help me accept new challenges and grow continuously.

My motto is "Success comes to those who are prepared." I believe that by always giving my best and preparing myself, I can turn opportunities into steps toward growth. At Suwon Science College, I am learning the abilities needed for service professionals and actively participating in classes and activities to improve my customer service skills. I hope that my efforts and qualities will lead to good results.

Thank you for listening.

Hello everyone! My name is Eunbyeol Cho, and I am currently majoring in Air Travel and Tourism at Suwon Science College. Thank you for giving me the opportunity to share my story with you.

First, as for my character, I am a sincere and cheerful person. When I start something, I always finish it with care, and I don't give up easily even if it is difficult. People around me often say I am reliable and trustworthy. And I enjoy exercising and singing, which help me stay healthy and confident.

Ever since I was young, I have felt true happiness in helping others. Even a small act of kindness made me proud when it brightened someone's day. These experiences naturally led me to dream of becoming a flight attendant, because it is a profession where care, kindness, and professionalism come together to create meaningful experiences for passengers.

I also worked part-time at a restaurant, where I learned a lot about customer service. Every guest had different needs, so I always tried to serve them with a sincere smile and a positive attitude. Through this experience, I realized that communication and consideration are the most important parts of service. I believe this will be a strong foundation when assisting passengers in the future.

In five years, I want to be a flight attendant who ensures passengers' safety, makes them feel comfortable, and gives them a pleasant journey. I will continue to do my best and work hard to achieve this dream.

Thank you for listening.

Hello everyone!
My name is Eunbyeol Cho.
I am very excited and truly appreciate the opportunity to be here and share my words with you.
Thank you for listening and giving me your attention.

Hello everyone, My name is Minseo Kong, and I am currently majoring in Air Travel and Tourism at Suwon Science College. Becoming a flight attendant is not just my dream—it is my passion. And today, I would like to share the experiences that have shaped me for this role.

While working at a wedding hall, I learned how to serve guests on one of the most special days of their lives. Even in a fast-paced environment, I stayed calm, positive, and professional. This taught me how to take care of customers and remain composed under pressure, which is essential for a flight attendant.

In college, I have been serving as a class representative. This role requires careful attention, so I always double-check my work to avoid mistakes that might affect others. Through this responsibility, I became accustomed to working closely with my classmates to make sure nothing was overlooked. These efforts helped our team work more efficiently and also built trust among us. I believe this teamwork experience is very important because flight attendants must cooperate closely with their crew. Just as I supported my classmates, I hope to contribute to my future team and ensure smooth service for all passengers.

To further prepare myself, I have been consistently improving my foreign language skills through regular practice and classroom learning. Since flight attendants interact with passengers of various nationalities and cultures, having strong language skills is essential for clear communication and excellent service. To this end, I am currently studying English, Japanese, and Chinese at school with passion and dedication. Thanks to these experiences, I feel confident and well-prepared to take on the role of a flight attendant.

Thank you very much for listening to my story today.

Hello everyone.
It's truly a pleasure to stand here and share my thoughts with you. I hope you enjoy this quiet moment together.

Hello, everyone. My name is Yena Ham. I am a student in the Air Travel and Tourism at Suwon Science College. Today, I will talk about why I dream of becoming a flight attendant and my qualities related to this.

First, I'd like to share why I want to become a flight attendant. I am warm-hearted and truly enjoy caring for others, which I believe makes me a great fit for the role of a flight attendant. While working at a restaurant, I once offered a warm drink to an upset customer. She later returned with chocolates to thank me, and that moment showed me how small acts of kindness can make a big difference. Since then, I have wanted to bring that same warmth and care to passengers as a flight attendant.

Second, I have strong communication skills. For five years, I volunteered at a daycare center for children with disabilities, where I learned that every person requires a different way of communication. This experience taught me to put others first and to adapt my approach when interacting with people. As a flight attendant, I will use these skills to connect with passengers in a way that makes each of them feel understood and cared for.

Lastly, I believe teamwork is essential to working as a flight attendant, and I have strengthened my teamwork skills through volunteering with people from different backgrounds. I truly enjoy collaborating with others as a team, and I am confident that I will work well with other crew members. Most importantly, I will do my best to create a positive and supportive atmosphere so that both the crew and passengers feel comfortable.

My goal is to become a flight attendant who creates an enjoyable and memorable journey for passengers by providing attentive service and a warm atmosphere. At the same time, I want to be a reliable team member who supports my colleagues and contributes to smooth teamwork on board.

Thank you for listening.

Hello everyone :)
I'm yena ham.
Thank you for giving me
this opportunity to introduce myself.
It's a great honor to stand on this stage.

Hello everyone! My name is Chaeun Byun, and I am majoring in Air Travel and Tourism at Suwon Science College. "Radiate positivity" is my life motto and I hope to share that positivity with you during this speech.

To begin, I envision myself ten years from now not only as a professional flight attendant but also as a mentor to aspiring cabin crew members. During my college airline training program, I had the privilege of hearing firsthand experiences from a current flight attendant. This encounter deeply inspired me and further strengthened my determination to pursue this career.

Secondly, I believe that maintaining eye contact is essential to delivering authentic service. It builds trust and helps ease passengers' anxiety in the unfamiliar environment of an aircraft. In my daily interactions, I make a conscious effort to maintain eye contact during conversations to show genuine interest and care. As a result, I have often been praised for making people feel heard, valued, and comfortable. My aspiration is to become a flight attendant who provides reassurance and warmth through consistent and sincere eye contact.

Lastly, I firmly believe that teamwork is essential for creating efficient and exceptional in-flight service. Strong teamwork ensures consistent, high-quality care for all passengers. I witnessed this firsthand while working at a busy bagel shop, where the staff's clear division of roles allowed them to serve customers quickly and comfortably. From this experience, I am confident that teamwork is the key to delivering outstanding service on board.

To conclude, I believe my passion and dedication to delivering excellent service align perfectly with the role of a flight attendant. Someday, I hope to use my skills and enthusiasm to create memorable experiences for every passenger.

Thank you very much for your kind attention.

Hello everyone! :) I'm Chaeun Byun. Thank you for giving me the opportunity to introduce myself. I'll do my best - stay tuned!

Hello everyone, My name is Gyuri Kim, and I'm currently studying Air Travel & Tourism at Suwon Science College. Today, I'd like to start by introducing myself and explaining how my strong interest in service shaped my dream.

I was inspired to become a flight attendant through my experience in the service industry. Before entering college, I worked part-time at several restaurants. While working at a small restaurant, one customer told me they were very satisfied with my service and said I made a positive impression on the entire place. That moment made me realize how meaningful good service can be. Since then, I've wanted to provide better service to more people, and that's how I started dreaming of becoming a flight attendant.

I believe I'm well-suited for this job because I'm a sincere and responsible person. I always submit my assignments on time and have never been absent from class. Also during my time working in the service industry, I always made it a habit to arrive 10 minutes early to check my duties and prepare for the day. This routine helped build my confidence and contributed to a better experience for customers. Since flight schedules are very important in the airline industry, I believe this sense of responsibility and commitment will help me excel as a flight attendant.

At Suwon Science College, I've gained many valuable experiences through my major. I've enjoyed various language programs and had the chance to write and present my own English interview script. I also participated in a "class crew" program provided by T'way Airlines, which was a very meaningful experience. Through these activities, I've learned how important communication skills are for flight attendants. So I will continue to improve my language skills and grow into a professional with excellent communication abilities.

Thank you for listening!

Hello, I'm Kayoung Lim.
This speech contest shows us that nothing is impossible.
With this mindset we can Continue to challenge ourselves and grow every day. I hope you enjoy my speech. Thank you.

Hello, everyone! My name is Kayoung Lim. I was born and raised in Korea, but my background is a little special because my mother is American and my father is Korean. Growing up between two cultures gave me a unique perspective on the world as well as strong English skills from an early age. Every vacation, I visited my grandparents' house in Boston, where I spent memorable times with my relatives. I also had the chance to travel to other U. S. destinations, such as Florida, New York, and Washington, D.C. These experiences allowed me to be exposed to American culture naturally and broadened my view of the world.

People say that I am lucky to be able to speak two languages fluently, and I definitely agree that being bilingual is one of my strengths but, I am also bi-cultural, and I believe that THIS is my greatest asset. Not only do I speak two languages; I also understand two very different cultures deeply.

My dream is to become a flight attendant. The reason is simple, but powerful. I want to use my language skills and cultural awareness to create personal connections that make travelers feel welcome and comfortable. Growing up with two cultures has helped me become more open-minded and flexible, so I can adapt quickly to new situations. It has also improved my communication skills, because I understand different ways of thinking and interacting with people. I enjoy meeting people from different backgrounds and can build positive relationships easily. In addition, my experience with two cultures makes me more empathetic and respectful, which helps me provide excellent customer service. These qualities help me connect with passengers from all over the world and represent the airline in a professional and friendly way.

In addition, I also have experience working as a member of a multicultural team when I taught English to children last year. Our staff consisted of teachers from Europe, North American, and South America, as well as Korea. From this experience, I learned to respect differences and to be open to new ideas.

These experiences have prepared me to work well with people from all over the globe. In the future, I hope to stand proudly in the skies, not only as a flight attendant, but also as someone who can share kindness, respect, and cultural understanding with the world.

Thank you.

Hello, everyone. My name is Yumin Lee, and I'm a student in the Air Travel and Tourism at Suwon Science College. Thank you for giving me the opportunity to introduce myself today.

First, let me start by sharing the reason why I want to be a flight attendant. I believe it would allow me to do what I love and what I am good at at the same time. In high school, I was actively involved in peer counseling, and I felt great fulfillment when I could empathize with and help others. Through this experience, I realized how meaningful it is to communicate and share feelings with people. I also enjoy meeting new people and interacting with individuals from diverse backgrounds. Based on these experiences and interests, I hope to become a flight attendant who provides warm and attentive service.

Second, I believe adaptability is an essential quality for a flight attendant. Since I transferred schools frequently when I was young, I learned to embrace new environments positively and developed strong interpersonal skills. I am confident that my ability to communicate well and respond flexibly to different situations matches the demands of a crew member. With these strengths, I will be able to adapt to various customer needs and provide excellent service.

Lastly, my life motto is, "Opportunities come to those who are prepared." Thanks to this mindset, I have achieved great academic results and had the chance to participate in a job experience program with T'way Air, which deepened my dream of becoming a flight attendant. Through this experience, I gained a clearer understanding of the qualities needed in the field, and it motivated me to strengthen my abilities—such as physical stamina and the capacity to handle problems calmly. I will continue to prepare myself diligently to take future opportunities. Thank you for listening.

Hello everyone. I'm Seeun Kim. It's a true honor to stand on this stage today. I believe every moment like this is a chance to grow and to inspire one another. Let's make this moment unforgettable Thank you.

Hello everyone, my name is Kim Seeun. First of all, I really appreciate this valuable experience. My goal is to become a flight attendant who provides personalized service by anticipating passengers' needs, rather than just responding to their requests. To prepare for this, I am majoring in Air Travel and Tourism at Suwon Science College. I believe I have the right qualities to achieve this goal.

First, while working part-time at a wedding hall, I learned the importance of teamwork. I always communicated closely with my colleagues and helped one another. Thanks to our cooperation and my efforts, we were able to provide excellent service and satisfy our customers. I believe teamwork is essential because it has a direct impact on customer satisfaction. Through this experience, I learned how to work well with others, which I believe I can apply effectively as a flight attendant.

Second, I volunteered at a meal service center for three years. One of the hardest tasks was cleaning overflowing food waste bins and keeping the area clean. Although it was difficult, I did my best with a sense of responsibility and gratitude, knowing that someone had once done the same so I could eat comfortably. Through this experience, I learned the value of commitment and the importance of being considerate. These are qualities I gained through my volunteer work.

Third, I am attentive and care for others—qualities that are very important in the service industry. For example, I carry Band-Aids and extra supplies with me, so I can help others whenever needed. Because flight attendants must always be prepared to help and meet passengers' needs, I am committed to further improving these qualities in myself.

I am currently taking customer service training classes at college, and studying English, Chinese, and Japanese to fully prepare myself for a career as a flight attendant. I am also eager to keep learning and gaining experience to grow in this role.

Thank you for listening.

First, the reason I dreamed of becoming a flight attendant began with my part-time job at a café. While working there, I truly enjoyed providing service to customers and having small conversations with them. Through that experience, I realized that a service-oriented job suits me well, and this naturally inspired me to pursue the dream of becoming a flight attendant.

Second, I believe a strong sense of responsibility is an essential quality for a flight attendant. During my six years as a speed skater in school, I developed perseverance and accountability. Through consistent training and teamwork, I learned to stay committed and see things through to the end, no matter how challenging the situation. I am confident that these qualities will enable me to work with dedication and reliability in this role.

Third, let me share one of my memorable service experiences. While working at the café, I once decided to include a spoon with a drink that didn't originally come with one, thinking it might be more convenient for the customer. The customer smiled and said, "It's much better this way." At that moment, I realized how even a small, thoughtful gesture can greatly enhance customer satisfaction.

Finally, my motto is SMALL ACTIONS, BIG IMPACT

As a cabin crew member, I believe that even the smallest gestures—like a warm smile, a kind word, or a thoughtful detail—can make a huge difference in a passenger's experience. This mindset helps me stay attentive, proactive, and always ready to provide service that goes beyond expectations.

Thank you for listening to my presentation.

Hello everyone I'm Minsol Kim. It is a great honor to participate in the department's traditional event. As much as you gave me a precious opportunity, I'll do my best.

Hello everyone,
My name is Minsol Kim, and I am currently majoring in Air Travel and Tourism at Suwon Science College. Today, I would like to talk about why I want to become a flight attendant and why I believe I am well-suited for this job.

First, let me explain why I want to become a flight attendant. I am drawn to this career because it allows me to travel to different countries, experience diverse cultures, and broaden my knowledge. I believe that learning from people and environments around the world will help me become more open-minded and understanding, which are qualities that I can reflect in the service I provide to passengers.

From now on, I would like to explain a few reasons why I am well-suited for the role of a flight attendant. First, I understand the importance of teamwork. As the head of my school's broadcasting club, I realized that teamwork is essential for achieving success. Every broadcast required close coordination, clear communication, and mutual trust. Through that experience, I learned how valuable each team member is and how strong we can be when we work together toward a common goal.

Also, I have experience working part-time at a restaurant. Working in the service industry made me happy because I found fulfillment in helping others and ensuring customer satisfaction. Through this job, I also developed problem-solving and adaptability skills, which I believe will be valuable as a flight attendant.

My personal motto is: "Stay calm, stay kind, stay professional"
" This mindset guides me in all situations, especially under pressure. I believe that staying composed, treating others with respect, and maintaining professionalism are essential qualities especially in the service industry. I strive to live by these values every day as I work toward my goal of becoming a flight attendant.

Thank you.

Hello, my name is Hyunseo Yoo, and I am currently studying in Air Travel and Tourism department at Suwon Science College.

My dream of becoming a flight attendant started from my strong interest in people. Since I was young, I've enjoyed meeting and talking with others. Through various cultural experiences, I learned how meaningful it is to leave a warm and positive impression.

When I studied in Canada, I lived with friends from many different cultures. This experience helped me understand not only language differences but also the value of respecting diverse traditions and perspectives. Through this, I realized that genuine service begins with understanding and kindness, and I strive to bring that mindset to everything I do.

One of my key strengths is my strong sense of responsibility. Managing middle and high school students at a Korean academy, I found it enjoyable to chat with various students, but it was tough to handle them. As a result, I made rules about doing their homework. Middle school students must finish their homework before going home, and high school students should do their homework according to their level and ability. This experience taught me that managing middle and high school students requires special approaches.

In college, I took on many responsibilities beyond academics. As a member of the department's supporter team, I helped organize events and participated in promotional activities. Through these experiences, I developed a strong sense of responsibility, which I believe will be valuable in my future role as a flight attendant.

If I have the opportunity to become a flight attendant, I will do my best to ensure that passengers feel both safe and comfortable. I will approach every task with care and professionalism, guided by my strong sense of responsibility and genuine concern for others. I also enjoy learning and continuously improving myself. Above all, I hope to contribute to making every passenger's journey not only safe but also pleasant and memorable. Thank you for listening to my speech.

Hello, I'm Na Gyeong Park and I'm truly grateful for this chance to stand here today. It is an honor to join the speech contest. Thank you.

Hello everyone! My name is Na Gyeong Park and I currently major in Air Travel and Tourism at Suwon Science College. Thank you for giving me the opportunity to introduce myself.

I chose this major with the dream of becoming a flight attendant. The reason why I want to be a flight attendant is that ever since I was young, I have found joy in helping others. Whether it was offering a hand to a classmate or supporting someone who needed guidance, I've always felt proud when I could contribute to making someone's day better. That sense of fulfillment naturally led me to dream of becoming a flight attendant—a role where kindness, support, and professionalism come together to create memorable experiences for passengers.

One of my strengths is honesty. I think honesty builds trust and prevents misunderstandings. Because of this, I can keep good relationships with people around me and finish team projects without problems. I believe teamwork is very important for flight attendants.

By using my strength

I will create perfect teamwork and make flights that satisfy passengers.

Also, I focus on studying foreign languages to communicate with passengers from all around the world. Actually, I am not afraid of using foreign languages in real situations. While working part-time at a hotel, I met many foreign guests. At first, my English was not perfect, but I tried to speak with confidence. The guests noticed my effort and gave me positive reactions. I believe this experience will be a good foundation when I serve passengers of many different nationalities as a flight attendant.

Lastly, I would like to share my motto, which is "Luck is what happens when preparation meets opportunity". I will give my best effort to develop myself as the best professional.

Thank you for listening.

Hello, everyone! My name is Soomin Seo and I currently major in Air Travel and Tourism at Suwon Science. Today, I'd like to tell you what kind of person I am, and why I dream of becoming a flight attendant.

Since I was young, I have really enjoyed traveling and experiencing different cultures around the world. At first, I simply wanted to become a flight attendant to explore many countries. But now, I have realized that this job also gives me the chance to care for others and make their journeys more comfortable and meaningful. Not only do I have a passion for becoming a flight attendant, but I also believe my personal strengths make me well-suited for this role.

First of all, I am patient and able to make decisions based on rational judgment. For example, during my high school dance practice, one teammate was not cooperating. I felt a little upset, but I stayed patient and encouraged her. Thanks to that, we were able to complete the performance successfully. I also try to think carefully before taking action and make logical decisions according to the situation. If an emergency occurs during a flight, I believe these strengths will help me handle it well.

In addition, I have experience tutoring high school students in English. By preparing lessons and creating handouts on my own, I developed a strong sense of responsibility and further improved my English skills. It was a meaningful experience because it taught me how to communicate effectively and build positive relationships with others. Moreover, guiding students and seeing their progress gave me a sense of fulfillment, which strengthened my desire to pursue a career that involves helping and supporting people.

Lastly, I would like to share my motto in life: "Stay humble." I believe that if I become arrogant after achieving something, I will not be able to move on to the next level. With my experiences and personality, I will work harder than anyone else to achieve my dream. I hope to see you again as a flight attendant.

Thank you so much for your valuable time.

Hello, my name is Soyul Kim. I am truly honored to take part in this English Speech Contest. Given this opportunity, I will do my best until the very end. I hope to learn and grow through this experience. Thank you for your kind attention and support.

Good afternoon, everyone. My name is Nayoung Kwon, and I am currently majoring in Air Travel and Tourism at Suwon Science College. Today, I would like to introduce why I want to become a flight attendant and why I believe I am well suited for this role.

One of my greatest strengths is my ability to listen carefully to others. During a group project at school, I noticed that one teammate was struggling but hesitant to speak up. By listening attentively and creating a comfortable atmosphere, I encouraged open communication and helped the team work more smoothly. This experience taught me that it is important to pay attention not only to what people say, but also to what they don't express directly. I believe this is a valuable skill for providing excellent service as a flight attendant.

I am also good at solving problems. For example, when I served as student president, some classmates said they didn't enjoy studying in the classroom during lunch. I listened carefully to their concerns and suggested using the break room as a study space. This idea worked well, and the students felt much happier. I believe this ability to find solutions will help me handle unexpected situations on board.

In my major, I have been studying English, Chinese, and Japanese, which helps me communicate with people from different cultures. I have also learned the importance of service, empathy, and professionalism through various classes and activities.

I am truly passionate about working in the airline industry. My personal motto is "Hard work always pays off," and I try to live by it every day. I will continue to learn, do my best, and become a flight attendant that passengers can trust and remember. Thank you very much for listening, and I look forward to flying with you in the future!"

Good afternoon, everyone. My name is Nayoung Kwon, and I am currently majoring in Air Travel and Tourism at Suwon Science College. Today, I would like to introduce why I want to become a flight attendant and why I believe I am well suited for this role.

Hello everyone. My name is Sihyun Kim, a student at Suwon Science College, majoring in Air travel and Tourism. Today I'd like to talk about why I decided to be a flight attendant, and reasons why I'm suitable for the job.

When I was young, I took a long trip to the United States, where communicating with people of different backgrounds gave me a broader perspective. It was then that I realized how meaningful and exciting it is to connect with people beyond language and cultural barriers. Since that experience, I have dreamed of working in a global environment where I can meet people from all over the world. Also, I have a strong sense of responsibility. During my high school years, I was involved in the student council and a volunteer club. Hello, I'm Sihyun Kim.
It's a great honor to participate in the 2025 English Speech Contest. I hope my story inspires you. Thank you!

Hello everyone! My name is HyunSeo Seo, and I'm studying Air Travel and Tourism at Suwon Science College. Today, I'd like to talk about my goals and why I want to be a flight attendant.

First, I began dreaming of becoming a flight attendant when I traveled abroad.

I was deeply touched by how kind and caring the flight attendants were. They didn't just serve food or give instructions—they created a warm atmosphere and made passengers feel safe and comfortable. Their professionalism and genuine hospitality left a lasting impression on me. Since then, I have wanted to follow in their footsteps and bring the same sense of comfort and happiness to others during their journey.

Second, one of my strengths is listening carefully and paying close attention to others. During group projects at school, I supported my team by understanding different opinions and helping to find the best solutions together. I believe this ability will enable me to work harmoniously with other crew members and provide attentive care to passengers. It also shows that I value teamwork and communication, which are essential qualities for a successful flight attendant.

Third, during my time at school, I learned a lot about airline service and how to communicate effectively with customers. I also had many opportunities to give presentations and work on team projects, which helped me improve my public speaking skills and boosted my confidence. I hope to continue developing these abilities and grow into a flight attendant who can represent the airline proudly all around the world.

Lastly, my life motto is, "Don't be swayed by circumstances." I think it's important to stay calm, even when something unexpected happens. If I stay calm, I can give better service and help others feel calm too.

With all the things I've learned and experienced, I believe I can be a flight attendant who gives great service and makes a good difference on every flight.

Thank you for listening.
